This is my first product (of hopefully many) and the first time I've uploaded to the DM's Guild. It's here! Do you want your ranger to utterly ravage their enemies with savagery? Channeling divine power with precious little training, these Invokers are tasked with keeping faith through one of the following covenants: Covenant of Ardor - These zealots keep alive the flame of faith, spurring others to work the will of the gods. A player that wants to create a character influenced by Iceman from Marvel's X-Men comics or Elsa from Disney's Frozen movies could be drawn to an ice wielding sorcerer. Infact some are even betting on the action. Sometimes, your story has some characters that get more chances to shine, while others tend to hang around in the background. Because of this somewhat unusual structure, these plotlines are not intended for novice Dungeon Masters! A Character Spotlight is a short plotline that focuses on one character, instead of the whole group. When I sat with him in advance to make his character, he settled on a charismatic Half-Orc Bard/Barbarian named Lionel Gayheart. Author: Michael "TheChronoMaster" Bennett Format: Hardcover, eBook (PDF) The Astral Plane: a plane of silver and color pools, of dreams and dead gods. A place where you can get anywhere, or drift to nowhere. Covenant of Preservation - These guardians protect the lives of the faithful, using their power to keep safe those willing to serve heavenly powers. Others instead discover the impossibly powerful majesty of the duck, eschewing the influence of inferior inspirations and instead devoting their strength and attention to these incredible beaked sentinels of ponds across the realms, in return being granted supernatural skill and ability in the image of their feathered patrons. It is intended to be used with the 5th Edition Dungeons & Dragon Ruleset but is not tied to a specific campaign setting. Things like "5 Adventure Hooks inspired by digital artwork" and the like. Author: N3rdm3t4l Gaming Format: Hardcover, eBook (PDF) Have you ever wanted to create paranoia so deep that your characters take a dagger to every single object they encounter? Regardless of the journey that has led a rage-fueled engine of destruction to discover the endless might and wisdom of these billed beasts that protect the planes, the rewards that lay in wait for those who prove their tenacity and will to their quacking masters shall be remembered as guardians of legend, flapping forces of nature whose deeds carve a bloody (and quite loud) path of glory through the ages to come. As always, any paid purchases are appreciated greatly! I feel that I put a lot into this one Version History - 1.0 released 11/19/2016 - 1.1 released 11/22/2016 - Added appropriate weapon proficiencies (forgot to initially!) - 1.2 released 12/12/2016 - Some small typos fixed. Because Character Spotlights should be character-driven, these plotlines contain an unusual element. For example, if a thieves' guild features in a plotline, it's probably going to exist because the PCs have already interacted with a thieves' guild, not because you want to invent one on the fly.
